dormakaba recognized among TIME's Most Sustainable Companies 2026

Rümlang, 24 June 2026 – dormakaba has been recognized as one of TIME magazine's Most Sustainable Companies 2026, ranking 662nd among 5,800 assessed companies worldwide. Following a comprehensive evaluation process, only 750 companies were selected for inclusion in the annual ranking.

The recognition highlights organizations that are leading the way in sustainability and setting benchmarks for responsible business practices, transparency, and accountability.

"We are proud to be recognized among TIME's Most Sustainable Companies 2026," says Stephanie Ossenbach, Group Sustainability Officer of dormakaba. "This recognition reflects the commitment of our employees around the world and reinforces our ambition to create sustainable value for our customers, shareholders, employees, and the communities in which we operate. Sustainability is an integral part of how we do business and how we shape the future of access solutions."

The ranking was developed by TIME in partnership with Statista and is based on a rigorous assessment of more than 20 key performance indicators. The evaluation covers sustainable business practices, external sustainability ratings and commitments, reporting standards and transparency, as well as environmental and social performance.

As a global provider of access solutions, dormakaba is committed to supporting customers in creating safe, secure, and sustainable buildings and infrastructure. The company's sustainability efforts focus on reducing environmental impact, fostering an inclusive workplace, maintaining high ethical standards, and driving innovation that supports a more sustainable built environment.
